Hi,

At a PHA Europe meeting held in London yesterday (19 September) it was felt that it would be worthwhile putting something on the PHA website to invite people from around the world to share their feelings about the tragic incidents of 11 September and to encourage them to share views on how to deal with the aftermath. We agreed that we should draw people's attention to the passages in the Charter that condemn war and violence, that urge an ending to the displacement of peoples, that seek to combat racism and fundamentalism, and that press for multilateral, rather than unilateral solutions. The following text is something that we could put up on the website (and distribute through the PHA Exchange list). I'm suggesting in it that we use the PHA Exchange discussion list as the forum for any discussion.

Please let me have your comments and feedback on this proposal quickly (by return??). We would like to put this on the site on Friday, 21 September or Monday 24 September at the latest.

After 11 September 2001

In December 2000, more than 1400 people from 93 countries met in Bangladesh at the world's first People's Health Assembly (PHA). They developed a People's Charter for Health which describes the vision of 'a world that respects, appreciates and celebrates all life and diversity'. Today, such a vision is needed more than ever.

The Charter points out that:

'War, violence, conflict and natural disasters devastate communities and destroy human dignity. They have a severe impact on the physical and mental health of their members, especially women and children.

The Charter also notes that:

'Strong people's organisations and movements are fundamental to more democratic, transparent and accountable decision-making processes.'

Within its call for action, the Charter calls on people of the world to:

- * Condemn and seek the reversal of any policies which result in the forced displacement of people from their lands, homes or jobs.
- * Oppose fundamentalist forces that threaten the rights and liberties of individuals, particularly the lives of women, children and minorities.
- * Support campaigns and movement for peace and disarmament.
- * Support people's initiatives to achieve a just and lasting peace, especially in countries with experiences of civil war and genocide.
- * Demand that the United Nations and individual states end all kinds of sanctions used as an instrument of aggression which can damage the health of civilian populations.

The Charter also calls for the radical transformation of the UN Security Council so that it functions democratically. In today's crisis, a democratic, representative Security Council could provide the international leadership required to steer a safe path through the present global tension.

The People's Health Assembly Movement is interested in your views of how we can work together towards a just and lasting settlement of the global terror that threatens to undo development activities and undermine efforts to improve health around the world. Dear Andy,

Hi! Thanks for the PHA Statement! It is really important to have a clear statement with a good focus on what needs to be done at this time. There are a lot of shallow articles going around the internet on the issue and the PHA Statement is indeed very timely and properly oriented.

I tried clicking the 11 September box but I was not able to get anything. Is there anything else I need to do? Please advise. Thanks again and best regards.

Hi,
thanks to those of you who responded so quickly and so positively to the suggestion for the notice on the website. To those of you who haven't yet replied, apologies for not waiting; however, there seemed such a strong voice to go ahead, and also a sense of some urgency was communicated by some of you, so I've just put it up and made a link to the PHAExchange discussion list. (You can get to it by clicking on the 11 September box on the home page <http://www.phamovement.org>) I've also just posted the text on the PHAExchange list. Shortly, I'll also cross post it to the drumbeatchat discussion list, operated by the Communication Initiative.

I've also revised the news page on the website (which was only half complete anyway) with a note about this page, and also included a news release that I just received, announcing that 14 of the major development agencies in the UK have called for restraint.

I'm currently working on the some of the other pages on the website, hoping to tidy it up a bit more and add more material. Please let me have any suggestions of links or material.

Medact's response to the bombing of Afghanistan

As an organisation committed to non violent resolution of conflict, Medact regrets the use of military force in response to the attacks on New York and Washington of 11 September.

These were terrible crimes against humanity, and the instigators must be duly tried before an appropriate court of law. However, we fear that the bombing of Afghanistan will delay rather than promote bringing those responsible to justice. The attacks will claim more lives, and whether these are Taliban fighters or civilians, they will be regarded as martyrs and their deaths will result in more terrorism. In the words of Richard Horton, Editor of the Lancet (6 October) 'Principles of harm reduction are more realistic than false notions of a war on terrorism.'

Afghanistan is on the verge of a massive humanitarian crisis. The attacks could turn this into a worse disaster, and as such could be regarded as a breach of international law. Aid agencies state that air-drops of food will be ineffective.

Military action has not been specifically approved by the UN Security Council. We call for an immediate end to military action and a massive aid programme to prevent hundreds of thousands of deaths from cold and starvation. International co-operation should be capable of apprehending Osama bin Laden and bringing him and others to justice.

Like Richard Horton we conclude that 'Attacking hunger, disease, poverty and social exclusion might do more good than military action. Global security will only be achieved by building strong and stable societies. Health is an undervalued measure of our global security.'

Dear Dr. Narayan.

I hope ^{this} note finds you, Thelma and the extended CHC team in good health and spirits.

For the past two months I have been here attending to family issues which included a short period of hospitalisation for my father. He is thankfully much better, although he tends to be prone to chronic arthritic pain and swelling in his ankles and feet. R

You probably received an e-mail note from me about the fact that the Indian Institute of Information Technology at the ^{ITIL} Technopark Whitefield sponsors post-doc fellowships in "Information access for the socially underprivileged". Given the People's Health Watch concept, they might well be persuaded to collaborate. The fellowships are supported to the extent of Rs Two lakhs with the collaborating agency providing additional funds.

Yesterday on BBC radio there was an interview with the UNO Special Representative on Afghan Children in Armed Conflict. His name was difficult to follow but he spoke about the urgent need for setting up Community Health Centres for children and women at risk - concepts that CHC and its networks pioneered. Perhaps that would be a way to usher in a People's Health initiative in Afghanistan.

Dear Santosh,

Greetings from Community Health Cell:

I keep getting overwhelmed by the email piles. Hence this delay. Will follow up with IIIT when the process evolved further. Arjun had a few relapses. Had to discontinue with us last month. Now is staying and working with a Pastor near Kammanahalli. No ideas about support for the Johannesburg summit. Unni would have been the best source but he has gone to Turkey. The PHM idea is moving slowly. It will build up only after we take over PHM secretariat later this year.

Best Wishes,

Dear Ravi,

Wonderful to hear from you. I had planned to contact you on something that seemed to cross over with the people's health watch proposal. The Indian Institute of Information Technology at the Tech Park, Whitefield (Bangalore) is offering post-doc fellowships valued at Rs 2lakhs for a variety of research topics one of them being IT and the community sector...(information access for the "socially underprivileged") I thought you might consider inquiring into the issue. ...they envision the awardee/s bringing in some resources from a supporting organisation

Hope things are going well for you and the team...How is Arjun doing. Please accept my regards and best wishes.

I found this at the bottom of a pile. Please contact Amar Jesani at Trivandrum Achutha Menon Centre. He has had years of experience on Human Rights issues and would be the best contact and would also link Dr. Ramakrishnan to other groups and networks. He was involved with Ethics and Human Rights teaching in his previous assignment in Mumbai. Keen in touch.

Best wishes,

Dear Santosh

I keep getting overwhelmed by the email piles. Hence this delay. Will follow up with the IIIT when the process evolves further. Arjun had a few relapses. Had to discontinue with us last month. Now is staying and working with a pastor near Kemanchalli. No ideas about support for the Johannesburg Summit. Unni would have been the best source but he has gone to Turkey. ~~Task received your letter of 3/7/02~~

The PHW idea is moving slowly. It will build up only after we take over

Pam,

We're currently doing work at the 'back' of the website - which you can't see yet: repairing links, restructuring the pages, adding in new pages, redesigning the basic pages, adding interactive elements so people can add their own information, sorting out the links to other language material, cleaning up the style and designing a subject oriented set of navigation tools and a new news page, that will be based around the newsbrief. This should be ready for review in October.

Meanwhile, we've taken the Sep 11 mention off the home page.

best wishes,

Andrew

Dear Andrew, et al,

Perhaps it would be good to place a notification on the home page of the PHM website that states that the site is being updated and worked on and should be ready by XXXXdate. That would encourage people to look further and to come back to the site.

Just a suggestion.

Regards to all.

Greetings from Community Health Cell!

Are you attending the PHM - GK Savar core group meeting in November? We are urgently in need of the following book published by BMA "The Medical Profession and Human Rights: Handbook for a changing agenda" British Medical Association, London, U.K. Zed Books, 2001. The cost of this book is 18.95 (Pound) (Paper back). Would you be able to get us a copy or mail it to us? Would BMA consider sending our CHC documentation unit a gratis copy or we will have to raise funds for it!

Its about networking with few corporate companies and how they can help our work through their expertise. The re construction page has been put up on the sochara website, so that people would know that we are working on the background. Also the CD-writer has been installed and I would like to thank you for such quick processing. It is working great and real useful for the PHW works. I am bringing the cd of work that I have worked for the past 3 days.

Dear all in the JSA- India e-group

New version of People's Health Movement website launched (www.phmovement.org)

Today (4 December) is the second anniversary of the People's Health Assembly (PHA) in Savar, Bangladesh. It is a fitting day to announce the relaunch of the People's Health Movement website. Please visit the site at www.phmovement.org and encourage others to also visit the site.

Among the new features are:

- the full text of Voices of the Unheard - the testimonies of the people from the PHA
- copies of the Charter in several languages (and more are being added)
- access to all of the background papers and issue papers from the PHA

In the coming weeks, visit the site again and again for:

- updates on developments in various regions
- the latest campaign news, including news of events being planned throughout 2003 to mark the 25th anniversary of the AlmaAta Declaration on Primary Health Care.

We'd like to have your news, your ideas, your suggestions on how to continue to improve the site. If you have ideas, please get in touch with communications@phmovement.org

We would also like to ask any people on the PHA-Exchange list who are interested in and have experience of working on communication, media and website activities to join the PHM Communications Working Circle. Again, simply send us an email to: communications@phmovement.org

Dear Andrew,

Greetings from Community Health Cell!

I discovered a small omission, perhaps, because the shift of the secretariat has not yet been communicated officially. But as soon as you receive it the steering committee should show both Dr. Qasem and me as outgoing and incoming coordinators in the steering group list. We shall be sending you the OHPs and other PHM materials soon. Did you receive Unni's draft of the proceedings of the recent meetings? Any comments?

Dear Andrew,

Greetings from Community Health Cell!

Congratulations for completing all the background tasks and ensuring curtain raising of the new website on the PHM anniversary.

This note should have come earlier but got misplaced in the pile. In the regional news / initiatives section, the classification of countries in the Asian region needs some further modification. Nepal, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka have inadvertently come into India section. Also Philippines in one case.

Perhaps we should inform our Webmaster of which countries go into South Asia without India; and South East Asia without China regions.

Otherwise it's an excellent job. Congratulation to both of you. I am sending a note to Qasem about the secretariat shift - transitional phase to release after he approves it. It can be reflected in the website when it reaches you

Dear Nand

Greetings for the New Year from the PHM Secretariat at CHC Bangalore!

Just returned from the Asia Social Forum where 14000 participants from India and Asia – celebrated their perspectives, ideas and initiatives of Another Asia – Another World. There was protest, dialogue and cultural exchanges and a phenomenal degree of solidarity and collectivity. We had nearly 15 seminars and workshops on PHM themes and I hope to send you a lot of materials from ASF. In the meanwhile, this is just to thank you as the new incoming PHM coordinator for the excellent work you have been doing for us and hope that you will be able to continue to do so in the next phase. We need to get to know each other – so do write and share about your plans for the future. I hear you may be moving closer to Bangalore (Goa!). I am just beginning to communicate directly with each of our secretarial support group.

Best wishes.

Dear Andrew, Qasem and Ravi,

Happy New Year!

Here are some thoughts on using the feedback we receive from the site

Besides the main section pages [What's New, Regional, Issues, People's Voices ...] I added the Feedback window to many other content pages on the PHM site - each Issue Paper, each People's Voice, People's Charter for Health pages, PHA2000 pages - Addresses, Testimonies, Presentations ... This should start to give us a very good idea of what people are finding useful or not on the site. The title of the page that they are providing feedback on is the subject of the email we receive.

In addition, I added the field 'Keep me informed' to each feedback form. This was done so that apart from getting their feedback we also get their permission to add them to our mailing list of contacts and send information to them, on a regular basis, in the future.

Many people visit web sites and when they find a site useful they bookmark it to visit in the future. Good intentions - however, in reality, most people don't use their Bookmarks / Favourites very often - they forget - or can't find what they are looking for easily. We loose them

I think it would be a good idea to send the New Brief to these folks - in html format by email on a regular basis. This should contain many links back to the PHM web site. In addition, recipients can easily forward this News Brief email to their internal/external distribution lists. They do the promotion of our web site for us!

Site visitors who provide feedback are given the option to be kept informed and are giving their permission. To expand the network, I think, these names should be added to the distribution list for the News Brief by email.

Dear Claudio / Andrew,

Greetings from Peoples Health Movement Secretariat at CHC, Bangalore!

We have all been deeply disturbed about the matter brought up by Nance but we have known about this for a few months and have discussed it at the steering committee. I would therefore suggest that a large notice in bold capitals is put up in the exchange that the new website of the Peoples Health Movement is www.phmovement.org and no longer pha2000.org which has been taken over by undesirable elements or something to that effect - so that we direct all those who are looking for the phmovement website to the new one and away from the porn site. Perhaps a large announcement on the home page of the website may be necessary as reinforcement. You may also have to request all PHM members to change this website address in all the publications, charters, handouts that they may have with the past website address. Andrew and Nand will have to go through each of the items on the website where the old website address is given and change it systematically. More than three months ago one of our team members have already brought it to our notice and there has been correspondence with Andrew, Qasem and other about this. We will have to do this with confidence and tact to ensure that we refer people away from a undesirable development without giving that site undue attention. Do your best.

Hi folks,

see the e-mail from Nand (who is working on the website). This relates to the ongoing promotion and maintenance of the site. Some specific issues:

- Agreement that NewsBrief will continue as a regular communication tool, and therefore that it is promoted on the site, with a subscription request form - that increases interaction with the site
- Note Nand's suggestion that the latest NewsBrief is e-mailed out to all the feedback people
- We need to have some discussion about how to get people to add their own material to the site (and, as Nand points out, who will moderate, edit, repackage this and link back to submitters) Ideas on this please.
- Ravi, note also Nand's willingness to work with someone in Bangalore to advise on how to maintain the site.

Also, a little advance notice - we've got the WHO Director General debate almost lined up. It will be on Sunday, 19 January from 3-5pm Geneva time (2-4pm GMT) with live sites in Geneva, London, Delhi, Tokyo, Addis Ababa, Saudi Arabia, Johannesburg, Washington, Rio/Sao Paulo and also will be broadcast across the internet. It will also be rebroadcast over the WorldSpace facilities in Africa and Asia later, and over the Canal Saude facilities in Brazil later. As of yesterday evening we had 6 of the 9 candidates agreeing to take part, with a seventh having agreed in principle. We're working on the other two. I'll send you further details later today or on Monday/Tuesday of the actual site locations and how you can engage with the process. By the way, I'm assuming that PHM wants to be recognised as a co-sponsor of this event, right?

best wishes,
Andrew

Dear Andrew,

The following items are either outstanding or I'm working on them on the phmovement.org site.

provide suggestions of ways to encourage regular traffic to the site and interaction with users, and ideas on how users can contribute their own material to the site

I have been registering the site on the major Search Engines that offer Free indexing [Google, AltaVista, All the Web, MSN, dmoz, AOL, etc.] Google's already indexed the site - AltaVista, AOL and a couple of others are showing phmovement.org - which gets redirected to phmovement.org. I will continue this effort until I see them listed on those engines. Have also been doing the same for the Healthy Documents site.

If News Brief is something that is regular and will continue to be - then we should advertise it as such on the site and encourage people to Subscribe to it. However, we need to be sure that we have a system in place at PHM to be able to handle this. Please let me know.

It is important that we send the News Brief newsletter to all the addresses that we are getting from the Feedback forms.

About users contributing their material - I can set something up - and again, we need somebody in place to receive the submissions and to select, review, edit ... etc. This would really help in people feeling a true sense of belonging to the movement.

The few items above should really help increase the volume of traffic to the site. After we've implemented them - we can look at other ideas.

provide simple guidance on how to maintain the site.

When we get to the stage of transferring the site to India to the Secretariat - I'd be happy to work with someone on this. The key issue here is to create a simple automated way to add New material. I've got a couple of ideas, and we will need to see what sections of the site we need to apply it to - News, Regional, Publications and Voices.

Kindly discuss this with your team at PHM and let me know your combined thoughts and ideas.

Dear Prasanna,

Just you are well. Sorry to read you haven't got the CD yet.

There is no courier (dhl, fedex, ...) service available from the village I live in. The package was sent to you by Registered Express Special Delivery. There is no way for you to track it from your end. I will ask the local Post Office to track - this, however, will take some time.

Do you have access to broadband in Bangalore? If yes, then you can use ftp to download the complete web site directly - it's about 46 mb, and should take you about 15-20 minutes. The ftp access instructions are included in the email I sent you.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Subject: JSA website name and hosting

Priority: High
Category: Collective decision making

Dear all

Further to the discussion we had during the NWG meeting regarding the website. I have thought of some names for the JSA website (This is called as 'Domain-name' technically). As it also has to cater to international audience it was felt that the name should be containing English version of the Jan Swasthya Abhiyan. Some of the suggestions from my side are (this is purely subjective and suggestive and anybody has the right to shoot it down). Also if you are suggesting new names please give me in sets of two for me to overcome problems with the name, if a name suggested is already registered by somebody (which is very unlikely, but I don't want to take a chance).

www.phmindia.org
www.jsa-phmindia.org

Also the registration of the "domain-name" costs us approximately Rs. 400 per year and I wanted to just find out the modality of funding this money.

I am working out with AID to host the website on aidindia server (Balaji had earlier done the same). If this becomes feasible then would be free of cost. But for the registration of the "domain-name" we could not be avoiding the costs.

Hope to get a quick response from all of you to this proposal.

Dear Nand,

Greetings from PHM Secretariat (Global) at CHC, Bangalore!

I wrote to you on 30th May reiterating the 'inspiration' of the London discussion, noting your absence at the hectic PHM Geneva week, and sharing our eagerness (Prasanna and mine) to keep in touch with you as you make the next shift in your most interesting life experience. But since there was an unusual silence - this is a repeat communication just to re-establish contact and hope there will be an opportunity to build our links further.

Andrew wrote that you would be updating the website till 15th June and then sending instructions to Prasanna how to take over and continue the good work that you have done of reviving and sustaining the PHM website (but there is no further news from him or you on this!).

So do write soon, even though we appreciate the pressures of the 'shift' and other constraints that you may be experiencing presently.

All the best from both of us.

Dear Nand,

Greetings from PHM Secretariat (Global) at CHC, Bangalore!

I wrote to you on 30th May reiterating the 'inspiration' of the London discussion; noting your absence at the hectic PHM Geneva week; and sharing our eagerness (Prasanna and mine) to keep in touch with you as you make the next shift in your most interesting life experience. But since there was an unusual silence - this is a ^{great} just to re-establish contact and hope there will be an opportunity to build our links further.

Andrew wrote that you would be updating the website till 15th June and then sending instructions to Prasanna how to take over and continue the good work that you have done of reviving and sustaining the PHM website, but there is no further news from him or you on this!

So do write soon, even though we appreciate the pressures of the 'shift' and other constraints that you may be experiencing presently.

All the best from both of us

Regards,

Ravi Narayan

Dear Nand,

Glad to hear from you finally. It would be great to meet. Why don't you visit Bangalore for a day or two enroute to Goa or from Goa. First week of September seems okay. Maybe a little hectic because of the Alma Ata Anniversary meeting in Iran being hosted by the Iran government in collaboration with PHM in second or third week of September. But not so hectic for a chat and a smooth website transition / clarification session. Do let us know possible dates as soon as possible. Looking forward to the meeting and awaiting the CD and other details regarding the website!

Dear Ravi,

Greetings from Samara, Costa Rica!

Yes, indeed, it was a pleasure to meet with you in London - a most fortunate bonus.

I have thought often about our evening discussion with a smile. I felt an overlap in our vision.

I've had to honour a few commitments, since coming back, and hence the delay in response. I've also just completed a week of silence. Sincere apologies and thanks for your patience.

I have, however, been catching up and updating the PHM site with input received recently from Ivoria and others. This work should be complete by the end of this week. I plan on sending you and Prasanna a very complete email with a CD of the phm web site together with domain registration, email forwarding, domain hosting and other related details within a week. All this should make for a smooth transition.

I plan to travel to Hong Kong, to visit with my mother, brother and family about mid August. I am also planning a side trip to India during the first week of September. Will be in Goa for a few days. What are your plans around that time? Can we meet?

regards,
nand

Dear Prasanna,

Thanks for this. I have a couple of questions:

1) Why are some called "Regional Focal Points" and others "Contact Points"? Southern Africa is a region, like East and Central Africa.

2) Why is my email SouthAfrica@phmovement.org and also lmartin@uwc.ac.za. Shouldn't I have one email? If so, it should be dsanders@uwc.ac.za, unless there are good reasons for it to be SouthAfrica@phmovement.org.

Hi Andrew and Nand,

Greetings from the PHM Secretariat(Global) at CHC Bangalore!!!!

I had been busy with setting up things both at the CHC office and the secretariat here. It is more or less settled now. Later on I became busy with the National working Group meeting of PHM India where there were some website issues as well. I just returned from New Delhi and thought of taking up the issue of the website slowly.

At this point of time, I hv one request. Could u pls. tag the secretariat@phmovement.org email address on the website with phmsec@touchtelindia.net instead of sochara@vsnl.com, so that it comes directly to us and helps in easier sorting out the mails. Also u could remove some of ur burden, by directing the feedback mails directly to comm.phmsec@touchtelindia.net without u having to take the extra trouble of forwarding the same once again to us (that is, if u dont hv any other purpose behind doing the same). In one or two days I hope to collect all the press releases that we hv released from the PHM, to be put on the website. I now hope to get into the loop faster and sooner. U can now start corresponding with me on this e-mail address.

Hope you received my quick response to your letter regarding UK meeting, which I sent just before leaving for a 3 week, hectic PHM – US tour with Thelma and Zafarullah. Just got back on the 19th and have been working with Unni on the anti-war issues.

Can you send me a final list of all the translated charters you have? You mention 27 in the communication of March 7th. Are there others which you have not been able to update? Will Pam have a complete list as of date?

More as soon as I go through the mountain of email!

Dear Andy,

Wow! Your message and update of the PHM website comes in at a very timely moment. We have a big meeting of the People's Health Movement Philippines tomorrow. We have been able to reach more groups and tomorrow we will be joined for the first time by large groups such as the Association of Municipal Health Officers of the Philippines (AMHOP), Integrated Midwives Association of the Philippines (IMAP), and the Medical Social Workers Association of the Philippines (MWSAPI).

I have been photocopying very good articles from the PHA Exchange and distributing them to various individuals and groups. But this time I can save a lot by just asking our contacts and friends to click into our website and let them download whatever is relevant for them.

Thanks a lot for this. This is indeed a big help.

Use it, promote it, tell people to visit the website and download a copy (and take a look at the other interesting material that is on there and continues to be added day by day). And let us know what you're doing as part of the People's Health Movement so we can put it up on the website.

Dear Andrew and Nand,

Greetings from Peoples Health Movement Secretariat at CHC, Bangalore - India!

Just to let you know that Prasanna joined the secretariat on 20th January as a communication support person. He starts on a three month initial link to get to know the work, after which he will decide whether he can give a long term commitment, which is most likely. Prasanna has some IT experience and management training and will be in touch with you over the next few days after he has made an initial review of the phmovement website. He has some ideas and eager to join in the efforts you have already made to make the website alive and interactive. He will contact you directly and the process can start up rightaway. I have also asked him to review our recent correspondence and all the messages from you both. He will be full time for the next three months and will join you both to keep up the global website; resurrect and rejuvenate the PHM Indian website; and help Unni with the web-based signature campaign. He will begin to address some of the issues and suggestions that you have brought up in recent mails.

Greetings from Peoples Health Movement Secretariat at CHC, Bangalore – India!

Dear Randi,

Greetings from PHM Secretariat Global!

Glad to hear that you think it is important and that you will be in India soon. In Pune, you should try and meet Dr. N.H. Antia of Foundation for Research in Community Health (FRCHE) and see his Farmhouse Project and the great Dr. Arant Phadke and Dr. Abhay Shukla of Center for People's Health and Allied Studies (CEHAT).

Dr. Antia is the chairperson of PHM India and Abhay is the first Convenor, who is spearheading the Right to Health, City Campaign in India. Arant Phadke worked with Lok Vigan Sangathan - the Maharashtra Science Movement on Health related issues and all of them would be interested in your Health Education in Villages and cities. Dr. Antia would be particularly interested because he is a great proponent of the Right to Information to empower the people's action.

In Goa, we hope you can meet Dr. Vikram Patel of SANGATH, an NGO working on promoting mental health education and awareness. Vikram is a faculty of the London School and wrote the book "When there is no Psychiatrist" and of them were at the Mumbai HAP - WFP meeting, which went very well!

Looking forward to meeting you - when you find the time.

Best wishes,

Ravi Nanayan

Dear Nand,

Greetings from PHM Secretariat (Global)!

Sorry to hear about the growth in the throat, but glad that the procedure and tests went okay and you are recuperating. You should definitely give your voice all the rest needed and possible. So don't let my invitation to WSP be any sort of pressure!

Looking forward to hearing about the Maharashtra Linkage and partnership about Health Education to villages when you are fully recovered. Sounds interesting.

Masanna has been hard at work understanding website management. Lets hope the transition is smooth and effective.

Best wishes to both of you.

Dear Ravi,

Trust you are well. First of all, thank you for your hospitality during my visit to Bangalore.

●ologies for the delayed response - a lot has happened since we last met.

After leaving you I went to Goa and then on to Mumbai. While in Mumbai, I went through a complete set of medical tests and then onto to Pune.

In Pune, I met some people who are just establishing a network to get education to the outlying areas within the districts of Maharashtra. I am going to be partnering with them to get "Health Education to Villages". Its exciting news and more about that in another email.

After returning from Pune, I got my medical test results and went through another set of tests which discovered a growth in my throat - around my vocal chords. I delayed my departure from India and had an operation done to have this growth removed.

After that, I went to Hong Kong to rest and recover. I was unable to speak for a couple of weeks and have just started to speak a little. I am presently in Hong Kong and will be departing tomorrow for home in Costa Rica [3 day stopover in Los Angeles].

Hence the delay in my response to you.

Thank you for the invitations for the International Health Forum and The World Social Forum to be held in Mumbai early January. I do not know how long it will take me to recover from my operation and get my voice back totally and hence am unable to confirm my participation. I feel that any strain on the vocal chords would be inadvisable - I was told by my doctor to keep quite silent and speak with a low voice for about 3 months. After that, to see how I feel.

I will keep you advised of my progress. Thanks for your patience.

Dear Ravi

I am sending a list. Please do not say we have 50 translations. I do not count them until they are in my hands. Therefore I do not put Dari and Pastun in as they aren't available. Please see the list and the advice re contacts. However I now give them to Andrew Chesley for the website as soon as I can. However some people want hard copy and it is a good idea that they have their own language contacts.

I have written some of these but have not asked their permission and in some countries I think we need to be cautious. Can the secretariat write to all those mentioned and ask if it is OK. Perhaps say if you do not hear you will assume it is. I think the Farsi and the Nepalese need specific request. Also I have already asked Christiane.

See what you think of the list so far.

Dear Nand,

Greetings from PHM Secretariat (Global)!

Just a note to let you know that I found your visit to PHM secretariat very thought provoking. I appreciate your frankness and 'down to earthiness' and I hope that this helps me to focus both PHM action and expectations. Prasanna is back from the PHM India - Mumbai meeting and we are meeting today and tomorrow to work on a plan of action for the next two weeks, so that he can focus on PHM website fully for a period to really get to know all the nitty gritty. He will keep in touch with you as this process evolves and I am glad that you have offered to continue to support / advise him in the matter.

Hope this is not too much intrusion into your holidays, but do keep in mind the suggestion to consider joining us between 12th - 15th January 2004 at Mumbai (most probably International YMCA near Bombay Central) for the International Health Forum on 14th / 15th and the discussions on communication strategy / website etc on 12th / 13th. The World Social Forum will be from 16th - 21st January 2004.

The only strategic opportunity for you, apart from the inevitable support to the PHM Secretariat is to meet a large number of local / national / international resource persons - all at one venue, which may be of some help to you in your future work in the country. If you feel comfortable with the idea, we could introduce a communication strategy workshop using ORT / Diarrhea as a case study that you and Andrew could facilitate at the forum.

These are just some ideas to keep in mind, when your holiday gets over.

Best wishes from all of us,

Dear Ravi and Amit

We would like to know about the PHM/JSA plant to make health an election issue. We would like to give some in puts related to HIV/AIDS.

Further, we would like to organise some event on patent ammendment bill 2003. Even though the bill is lapsed it may come up in the same form after the election. Hence, we would like to orgainse an event to mobilise public opinion after the election.

Hope to hear from you soon.

 Subject: PRESS RELEASE: "Spread the battle against HIV/ AIDS outside the health arena" says the Asian People's Charter on HIV/ AIDS -- (People's Health Movement)

People's Health Movement

“Spread the battle against HIV/ AIDS outside the health arena” says the Asian People's Charter on HIV/ AIDS.

Geneva, 18th May 2004: “Spread the battle against HIV/AIDS outside the health arena. HIV/ AIDS is also about politics, trade and profits” says the Asian People's Charter on HIV/ AIDS, an initiative of the People's Health Movement (PHM).

PHM is an international coalition of grass roots movements and health professionals that has a presence in nearly 100 countries.

“Hit the disease and the social and political context that amplifies the epidemic fast, hard and everywhere” said Eva Ombaka, from Tanzania and a member of PHM. She is attending the 57th World Health Assembly being held at Geneva, from 17th to 22nd May 2004. HIV/ AIDS is a key issue that the World health Assembly is addressing this year.

PHM is using the WHA to present and discuss the draft version of the Asian People's Charter on HIV/ AIDS. The charter is being considered as a ‘much needed tool’ to do a ‘reality check’ on the HIV/ AIDS epidemic that is threatening global stability.

“The charter is an amplifier of people's voices” said Zafrullah Choudhury from Bangladesh and a member of PHM. “We are calling for urgent action by the UN systems, policy makers and politicians to address the actual realities of the HIV/ AIDS crisis” he said.

Look at the realities:

1. In Africa, a whole generation is disappearing in front of our eyes. Poverty and profits over people's health have turned HIV/ AIDS into a killing machine.
2. The epidemic is spreading faster in pockets of Central Asia because of the ongoing armed conflicts and military expenditure, drug running and human trafficking.

3. Children orphaned because of HIV/ AIDS is taking its toll on the next generation. Time is running out and we need to act now.
4. Politicians and policy makers in Latin America and Asia have yet to learn lessons from the tragedy that has unfolded in Africa.

"We know the reasons for these deaths. We know their names and addresses. The international community will never win the battle against HIV/ AIDS unless they address its political, cultural, economic and social dimensions" said Mwajuma S. Masaiganah from Tanzania. She was referring to the growing clout of Multi National Drug companies who have become the major stumbling block in ensuring life for the millions of people infected and affected with HIV / AIDS.

In 2004, there are over 40 million people worldwide infected with HIV. 75 % of them are from Africa. Life expectancy in Sub Saharan Africa dropped by 15 years due to HIV/ AIDS. In 16 worst affected countries in Africa, life expectancy dropped by 50 %.

It is in this complex political and social reality, PHM is using the Charter as a rallying point to call the global attention and give a people's perspective to HIV/ AIDS crises.

The draft charter is being discussed and debated at various levels- local village meetings to international forums and the World Health Assembly. Various constituencies are extending their solidarity- from positive people's network, village health workers to medical professionals and campaigners working on access to health care and medicines and women's rights.

The charter is also supported by various international agencies like ActionAid International, Churches Action for Health, Italian Raoul Follereau Association (AIFO), Italy, WEMOS, MEDACT, Equinet (South Africa), Global Equity Gauge Alliance and Health Action International. National Front in Defense of People's Health, Ecuador is one of the recent bodies that extended their solidarity for this charter.

The final version of the charter will be released at the International AIDS conference scheduled to be held in Bangkok in July 2004.

The Charter, while demanding to place HIV/ AIDS in the context of primary health care, calls for radical reforms within the approach of governments, UN institutions like WHO and UNAIDS. "The acid test of WHO's 3 X 5 initiative is in its ability to strengthen primary health care systems and addressing gender issues including violence against women" said Thelma Narayan from India.

The charter also calls for people-based actions like legal action to challenge the exorbitant drug prices that are a direct violation of right to life and also to challenge the proposed changes in patent laws that will make drug prices further unaffordable.

"The lives that have been lost in Africa should not go as waste. Asia, Latin America and rest of the world should learn from these costly lessons" said Patricia Nickson from Democratic Republic of Congo and a public health specialist associated with PHM.

 Subject: [PHM_Steering_Group_02-03] "NEW 'ROAD MAP' OF WHO FOR PRIMARY HEALTH CARE IS A WELCOME SIGN, BUT INCOMPLETE " SAYS THE PEOPLE'S HEALTH MOVEMENT. Press Release - 19th May 2004

For media enquiries: During WHA: Geneva +41 78 876 5437 or +33 560 839 448 :

People's Health Movement

"NEW 'ROAD MAP' OF WHO FOR PRIMARY HEALTH CARE IS A WELCOME SIGN, BUT INCOMPLETE " SAYS THE PEOPLE'S HEALTH MOVEMENT.

PHM expresses serious concerns over the fact that the relevance of Primary Health Care is not reflected in the speech delivered by the WHO DG on 18th May.

Geneva ; 19th May 2004: 25 years ago WHO promised HEALTH FOR ALL through the Alma Ata declaration. However, the UN body abandoned the primary health care agenda in the later years. 'Health systems, including primary health care', a new WHO document endorses the primary health care agenda. It is a welcome return to the basics.

Grassroots movements like the People's Health Movement (PHM) offer a cautious welcome, but say this is not enough.

The apex UN health body's new 'road map' that is being presented during the ongoing World Health Assembly endorses the importance of primary health care- something that grass roots movements like the PHM has been demanding all these years.

Consider the positive elements in the WHO document:

1. It endorses primary health care and calls for a wholistic approach.
2. It calls for participation and inter sectoral coordination.
3. It reiterates the responsibility of governments and suggests decentralized action.
4. It suggests the importance of public health orientation to health systems development.

"This is a progressive and realistic move" said Maria Hamlin Zuniga of PHM. "It is good at its vision but weak in its strategies" she said. However, "The new 'road map' for primary health care misses the current political and economic realities" she added.

RNL

Consider the facts:

1. There is no reference to the terms and present day realities like poverty, hunger, food, water and education- the key determinants of health
2. The WHO is completely silent on the disastrous effects of the policies dictated by the World Bank, IMF and other financial institutions.
3. The document is completely silent on the negative role of pharmaceutical, tobacco, alcohol, military, baby food and other industries that negatively influence the health of the people.
4. WHO misses the point when it comes to the impacts of wars, conflict, militarization and occupation on health and health systems.

"Three key developments that we observe in this document are the emphasis it gives on the government's responsibility, reference to health system determinants and use of the 'primary health care lens' to track health strategies", said Ravi Narayan of PHM. "However, it is absolutely necessary that WHO strengthens its research capabilities on the social determinants of health so that it can feed appropriate information to member nations who thus can make informed decisions" he added.

"The resolution mentions the need to integrate disease-control programmes such as the new global funds with health care systems, but offers no ideas about mechanisms to do this. We need a code of practice, monitored by WHO, to ensure that disease control programmes do no harm to health services in developing countries" said Mike Rowson of MEDACT, UK and a constituent of PHM.

However, PHM expressed serious concerns over the fact that the relevance of Primary Health Care was not reflected in the speech delivered by the Director General of WHO 18th May.

The People's Charter for Health, the guiding spirit of the People's Health Movement and the largest consensus document on health, addresses some of these glaring omissions from a people's perspective.

People's Health Movement will keep up the pressure on WHO to ensure that the UN body is not just a pawn of the industry. PHM calls for creating space within WHO for strong representation of grass roots movements and ordinary people in policy and project formulation.

The Global Health Watch – an alternative World Health Report – is a new initiative by PHM. This alternate report is expected to amplify the voices of the grass roots and come up with fresh ideas about global health policy in the wake of the failures of the last 25 years. The report will highlight the political, social and economic determinants of health and suggest alternatives to the market-driven approaches to health and health care.

PHM extends its solidarity for the proposed commission on social and environmental causes of health inequities and how to overcome them.

New publication : 'Health and Human Rights Readers' by Claudio Schuftan

CEHAT has recently published the book 'Health and Human Rights Readers' authored by Dr. Claudio Schuftan, an internationally known Public Health expert and health activist associated with the People's Health Movement. This book is a compilation of fifty-two 'Readers in Human Rights', essays which have been previously circulated by Claudio on various electronic list-servers, some of the more recent Readers having been circulated on the PHA-exchange. The goal underlying the Readers, in Claudio's words, is "to re-center the development debate, and to convincingly articulate the reasons for centering it around human rights. The readers give you food for thought and for action for just that." The Readers discuss a wide range of issues such as Human Rights based planning, the role of the state, UN and civil society; Health sector reform and the unmet needs of the poor; Health Care Financing; vulnerability, access and discrimination; the role of NGOs; globalization, health rights and health sector reform; the right to adequate nutrition; the difference between project and process; and health rights and the law. These informative yet provoking readers would appeal particularly to health activists, health professionals and health sector NGO workers who seek a clearer grasp of health rights and a stimulating guide to action. Here Claudio squarely places Human Rights concerns at the centre of all health work, and gives the call for "a start-over, a global movement, a grassroots revolution around the right to health."

Global Polio Eradication Initiative in India A Cause for Concern

Dr C Sathyamala²

[Abstract: The paper suggests that the inability of the pulse-polio program to achieve polio eradication in India should surprise no one. This should not be misconstrued as a failure of a gigantic effort by lakhs of health workers and million of volunteers and participants in the program in the last eight years. The limitations of the efficacy of the oral polio vaccine and low routine immunization coverage in several parts of the state were well known to the WHO and all the other important decision-makers in the country. Despite this the case for early eradication of polio was aggressively promoted and the real possibility of failure was underplayed. The expensive gamble has however failed just as it happened in the past with other eradication programmes like malaria. Neither the global leaders of this initiative nor the Indian government are taking responsibility for this failure. The complete lack of transparency and accountability has meant that enormous amount of public resources, both in terms of money and manpower, has been wasted in this misadventure. The Global Polio Eradication Initiative illustrates the process of health policy making in the country and the role of international cooperation in health in the time of Globalization and Liberalization.)

Executive Summary

1. The paper is an initial overview of the Global Polio Eradication Initiative (GPEI) in India. It attempts to address three key issues arising from failure to meet the target of polio eradication in the country:

- How fair was it to impose the ambitious target of polio eradication on India, and other developing countries; a target which implies that a single case of polio anywhere would be tantamount to the failure of the entire global initiative? Could we have not managed better with less ambitious and more feasible target of polio reduction and control?
- Did we have a sound technical basis and operational strategy to embark on this super-ambitious polio eradication program? If yes, what went wrong with the implementation of this strategy?
- If the strategy of polio eradication initiative was faulty to begin with, what were the interests and influences that have played key roles in aggressively promoting this strategy in India and globally?

2. Failure to achieve polio eradication in India despite eight years of intensive effort. It is argued here that while the magic bullet of pulse polio and Intensive Pulse Polio Immunization (IPPI) might have contributed to the reduction of the transmission of poliovirus in India and other developing countries, it has singularly failed to achieve the eradication of polio. The first deadline of the year 2000 for achieving polio eradication has already passed. The new deadline of the year 2004 too is very close. In the high echelon of decision making, it is now agreed that this goal is not going to be achieved in the near future. Therefore the IPPI strategy has lost its meaning altogether and should be abandoned immediately.

3. The paper makes a plea for an independent review of the strategy from 2004 onwards to decide the future of the IPPI and other SIAs (Supplementary Immunization Activities) in India. There is an urgent need to learn lessons from the failure of the programme if we have to avoid repeating the same mistakes. This would also require a review of the lead role played by the international agencies like the WHO, UNICEF, Rotary International and Centre of Disease Control (CDC), Atlanta, in order to avoid being misled by them in future.

4. Real Magnitude of the Problem: Is polio eradication an overarching priority? It is also argued that when the WHO launched the global polio eradication program in 1988, the estimates of polio cases in India (and globally) were perhaps gross overestimates. Considering that, currently, in India the confirmed polio cases amongst the reported (Acute Flaccid Paralysis) AFP cases are just 10-20 % of the total, the previous estimation of the paralysees attributed to polio virus requires a review. This has to be seen in the context of, how the proponents of the GPEI have admitted that polio eradication is not a priority for the developing countries. Yet the program has been justified on the grounds that it may result in small savings to the western countries which would no longer need to spend on vaccination once polio eradication is achieved globally. This is an unacceptable reason for over loading the already weak health systems of the developing countries to this exhausting marathon run. The billions of dollars spent on this program could have been more efficiently utilized to solve more pressing problems and in the rehabilitation of the decaying health systems of the developing countries. It calls for making a realistic exercise of estimation of the opportunity cost of implementing this program and opportunities lost in not implementing the more appropriate programs.

5. Is it possible to repeat the great marvel of eradication of small pox? The high optimism of repeating the success of small pox eradication with poliovirus too has been belied. There are several differences in the two situations. First, surveillance to determine whether and where smallpox virus was present was comparatively simple compared to polio surveillance and could be rapidly accomplished. The vast majority of patients with smallpox had a distinctive rash. There were no asymptomatic patients and no chronic carriers. Thus, it was possible to do this without recourse to a laboratory. With Polio, there are 200 or more asymptomatic infections for every paralyzed patient. The only way one can ascertain whether the virus continues to circulate in an area is by an extended period of surveillance during which a great number of stool specimens are examined. The second difference is with respect to the efficacy of vaccination. One inoculation of smallpox vaccine protected nearly 100% of those vaccinated. In contrast, OPV in now endemic areas requires at least 3 doses and often 5 or 6 doses to reach protective levels of 90% for types I and III poliovirus, the predominant paralytic strains. Thus, in areas, where access and reach of vaccination programs was limited, vaccination immunity against smallpox could be rapidly increased because of the single dose inoculation but this is not possible with polio.

6. Why did the WHO aggressively promote the case for eradication? It is further argued that WHO over-pushed the case for eradication of poliovirus in India by using the example of Latin American countries that was not really applicable in the Indian situation. It also underplayed the real possibility of failures to achieve the goal due to well known limitations in India and other developing countries. These limitations pertained to the (i) very low routine immunization coverage in certain states in India and (ii) the low efficacy of the OPV in providing sufficient immunity in India and other developing countries. The WHO also overemphasized the possible benefits from the global eradication of poliovirus and underplayed the negative impacts on the general health services as well as the risks and costs of the failure of the program. It did all this against its own wisdom. It narrates how, after the failure of Malaria Eradication Programs globally, eradication became a 'bad word' in the WHO, notwithstanding the success achieved in small pox eradication earlier. It asserts, therefore that the WHO, in its organizational wisdom could not have, on its own, embarked on a global eradication program for polio. Based on the information available, it is difficult to figure out what influences have played a role in WHO for pushing polio eradication as an utmost urgent priority for the developing countries. We admit our failure in solving this riddle and invite others to help us in this endeavor.

7. The paper suggests that GPEI is yet another negative exercise in mismanaging the health priorities and programmes in developing countries. The UN institutions, their corporate philanthropic partners and the gullible health bureaucracies, technocracies and political leaderships of the developing countries, all are equal partners in this futile and absurd exercise. We also question the right of the G-8 nations and international philanthropies like Gates Foundation to provide earmarked resources for particular disease control programs and thereby distorting the health policies, priorities and programs of the developing countries. This appears to us as the biggest blemish on the international cooperation in health. Considering that global commitments are involved, it is necessary for India to play a more proactive role with the governments of the other

SAARC countries and the African countries where the WHO has thrust the program for the last several years. The paper also calls for learning lessons from the entire GPEI for the functioning of WHO and the GPPP within the WHO.

8. The way forward for India. There is a great urgency to make critical decisions for strengthening the health systems in India. Only this can enable us to strengthen our routine immunization programme and achieve control of polio in due course. There is no shortcut to this process. The positive lessons should be drawn from the gigantic efforts made by lakhs of health workers and millions of volunteers and participants in the programme throughout the country. The programme should be publicized as a success in reducing the transmission of poliovirus in the country and not as a failure, just because some cases are still occurring. The live contact made with millions of poor and disadvantaged people for the first time by the country's health systems should be strengthened for health improvements in other areas and with involvement of the newly activated civil society.

9. Right of compensation for those who have suffered from Vaccine Induced Paralytic Poliomyelitis (VIPP). A considerable proportion of children who have developed AFP due to polio virus are those who have received 3 or more doses of OPV. There is need for comprehensive rehabilitation of those suffering from residual paralyses (due to poliovirus and other causes). In the current strategy these aspects find no place.

The inferences made in this paper are based on available information on the issue. It is perhaps not possible to avoid hasty conclusions and ideological biases while stimulating discussion and debate, especially while all the data and information has not been placed on the table. We invite the readers and the experts in the field to place other facts and information on the table, challenge the inferences made in this paper and provide alternative interpretations and explanations.

Dear friends,

RE: THE U.S. Election for the Rest of the World

We'd love you to vote in the U.S. Election for the Rest of the World. We think it's pretty obvious to everyone but perhaps those inside the U.S.A what the rest of the world thinks in the forthcoming U.S. Election.

Please spend 1 or 2 seconds voting at <http://worldpeace.org.au/virtualelection.asp> and maybe another minute telling as many people as you can about it

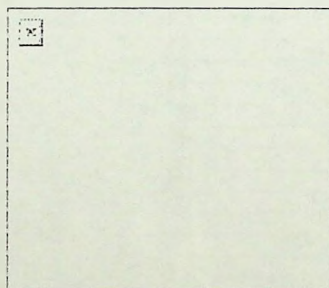

We need thousands of votes to make it meaningful, so we desperately need your help. Imagine how cool it would be to help the U.S. with their presidential selection. Lord knows they 'help' every other country with theirs!

Ironically if seen as a whole, the building of a platform like the WSF which has all the flaws to fit perfectly with one aspect of the strategy adopted by the imperialists to deal with the current opposition to their

While on the one hand, the naked aggression utilised by the US in tried to co-opt

I think we should highlight the International Health Forum and the World Social Forum in our forthcoming issue of HAI News. Therefore, I would be extremely grateful to you if you could send me some material (as attachments or by post) on the proceedings of the meetings. It is not too much to ask perhaps a write up would be ideal. However, if you have a tight schedule (which I am sure you must be), only the information you'd do. I will try to do an article and send it for your approval.

This will appear in the issue that would be posted in March so you will have sufficient time.

Please keep me posted.

Thanking you in advance for your assistance.

 Subject: BHOPAL GAS DISASTER :1984-2004

Friends : I had sent this mail earlier with some photographs that I had clicked, making it a 2505 KB mail, which was too huge a size for many of your Inbox with limited storage. there was mass bouncing. I am re-sending the same mail without photographs.
 I am scanning and putting it in profiles. I can send the 10 compelling photographs on your request and interest only.

I witnessed court proceeding in the Bhopal district court, hearing criminal/homicide trial on Union Carbide in connection with Bhopal gas disaster 1984, the prosecutor was CBI. The chief chemical analyst was being interrogated on the technicality of gas leakage. On the same day I had opportunity to be among with Gas affected victims, who had gathered outside District Court, this is where I felt the draft of genuine human stories in midst of all the technical details. I was moved by what was reflected from their eyes. The entire turn of events was so distrubing that I literally had to take myself outside Bhopal. Three cheers to our Sambhavana friends who are fighting for their cause...

The name Bhopal, we almost reflexly related it to 1984-The Bhopal Gas Disaster of Union Carbide Industry that produced pesticide Sevin. It also produced.. The worst ever Industrial disaster in the history of the world till date....

In my very younger days, I vaguely remember people gluing to the then omnipresent Black and White TV sets watching grim pictures, discussing about some catastrophe somewhere in India, way back in 1984. After almost twenty years, my battle with pesticide, now, draws me to this magnificent city of Nawabs.

..Today If you happen to pass by the derelict Union Carbide pesticide factory in Bhopal, nothing would strike you as out of ordinary. It looks like and other abandoned factory. Rust has set in and creepers are growing over machinery. The only sign of life is a bored watchman who isn't quiet sure what exactly he is supposed to watch...

>The sign board on the Entrance gate reads "Prohibited area" guarded by homeguards. It is mandatory to obtain official written permission from the District Collector for entry. After being convinced of my sustained interest in Environmental/Pesticide/occupational health and verification of my identity from my friends in Sambavana Trust (Very well known Bhopal gas disaster campaigners in India, based in Bhopal), the Deputy Collector signed the written permission orders for me to visit the ill-fated industrial site with copies marked to at least four departments.

>Armed with the permission orders from the DC, I visited the Union Carbide Industrial site. After passing on copy of permission marked to the Home guards on duty on the site, the gates were thrown open for an experience, which was to me, like undersea-diving to watch and feel the ruins of TITANIC.

CHILLING ACCOUNT OF THE BHOPAL GAS DISASTER AT UNION CARBIDE INDUSTRY AT BHOPAL ON 3 DEC 1984.

ONE SUNDAY NIGHT....

Late on Sunday evening, December 2, 1984 during routine maintenance operations in the Methyl Iso Cyanate (MIC) plant a large quantity of water entered on to the storage tank containing 60 tones of MIC. This triggered off a runaway reaction resulting in tremendous increase of temperature and pressure. Little before midnight, a deadly cocktail of MIC, Hydrogen Cyanide, Mono methyl amine and other chemicals was carried by northerly wind to the neighboring communities. Over the next couple of hours close to 40 tones of chemicals spread over the city of the about one million peoples covering an area of 40 sq km.

People woke up surround by poison cloud so dense and searing that they could hardly see. With their eyes stinging and their throat burning, hundreds of thousands of people ran screaming for their lives. As they gasped for breath, the effects of gas grew even more suffocating. The gases burned the tissues of their eyes lungs and attacked threir nervous system. People lost control of their bodies. Urine and faeces ran down their legs. Some began vomiting uncontrollably. Others were wracked with seizures and fell dead. The gases irritated peoples' lungs into producing so much fluid that their lungs were filled with it "drowning" them in their own body fluids.

People had no way to knowing it but they could have been safer running against the wind towards factory or by simply covering their faces with wet cloth. Nobody told them. The factory's siren had been switched off. Not until the gas was upon them, filling their mouths and lungs, did people know of their danger. Union Carbide's plant manager was woken at 1:30 am as the gas was still pouring over the stricken neighborhoods. The first official notification by Union Carbide management was done at 3 am when they informed police officials that the leak had been plugged. In fact it had not been, there just wasn't any gas left in the tank. By 4:30 am the manager was in this office telling reporters that his safety measures were the best in the country. Another Carbide official was telling newsman "Nothing has happened. Can't you see us Alive? Barely 100 yards away, dead bodies lay on the ground outside the factory gates.

A CITY OF DEATH....

It was a massacre. Dawn broke over streets littered with corpses. Though official figure was 1,600, the exact death toll in the immediate aftermath is not known and possibly will never be. Many families living on the wayside without any address were wiped out. While it was still dark, hundreds of dead bodies were carried away in the government vehicles and dumped in nearby forest and a river. In the days after the leak 6000 shrouds were distributed by religious organization and many were buried or cremated in the condition they were found Union Carbide said that reports of its victims deaths were greatly exaggerated . It said the leak had killed only 1408 people. The company complained that if only people had kept calm and not run away, they would probably have survived.

Doctors on the duty in the emergency ward at Hamidia hospital were besieged by the thousands who came choking and gasping for breath, had no knowledge of how to treat them. They called Union Carbide's medical officer who said that that MIC was like tear gas, an irritant but non - poisonous and the treatment was to wash with water. Not before long it was obvious that the medical officer had been lying. The hospital was filled with the dead and dying. By mid morning the hospital mortuary was overflowing and soon entire hospital compound was covered with dead bodies. Froth dry in their mouths and the horror of poison cloud in their still eyes. By noon cremation grounds had rows of smoldering pyres and the burial grounds old graves had to be dug to accommodate fresh corpses.

Many of the people who survived the terrible night died slow and painful death in the years following the disaster. In fact official figures so that more people have died in the subsequent years the and the immediate aftermath. To this day 10-15 people are dying every month from exposure related complication. The current death toll is well over 16,000 and counting.

THE UNENDING AFTERMATH...

Medical research carried out by official agencies have established that the half a million people who were exposed to toxic gases had poison circulating in their blood stream. The toxins caused damage to their eyes, lungs, kidney, liver intestines, muscles brain and reproductive immune systems, 40% of the women from the severely affected communities who were pregnant at the time of disaster, aborted. Anxiety depression , insomnia irritability are common among the affected people. Chromosomal aberration were detected in an unusually large number of survivors indicating the likelihood of congenital malformation in future generation of survivors. Union Carbide continues to treat medical information on the leaked chemicals as a trade secret . Till today very little, is known about how to treat chronic exposure induced diseases.

Like Hibakushas of Hiroshima, people marked by Carbide, poisons have to suffer social ostracism Young Bhopali women find it hard to get married, and many women have been deserted by their husbands because of their inability conceive. Impotence among men is a pain secretly carried and drowned in alcohol. Maleness is also seen to be lost, men who can no longer sustain their family. The company succeeded in winning a settlement in 1989 with the Indian government that passed a law to become the sole representative of the victims. Over 95% of the people most of whom are likely to be sick all their lives have received Rs15,000 (500US$)which is not even sufficient to pay for their medical bills for five years

A LEGACY OF INDIFFERENCE..

Warren Anderson, the Chairman of the Corporation charged with homicide jumped bail and is yet to face the ongoing court proceedings. Its more than six years since the Bhopal District courts issued an arrest warrant against him but the Indian government is yet to move on his extradition from US. Charges against the rest of the officials have been diluted so that the disaster, legally speaking has been made to look like an ordinary car accident.

The toxic legacy of Union Carbide continues to haunt the communities in the neighborhood of the factory. Huge quantities of chemicals wantonly dumped in and around the factory have found their way into ground water. The community hand pump bring forth water laced with poisons damaging to the liver, kidney and lungs. At least two of these chemicals are known carcinogen

THE STRUGGLE TO SURVIVE...

Faced with corporate machination of liability evasion, a government that considers their lives expendable and legal system that persistently denied them justice, the survivors of Bhopal continue to carry on with the longest struggle ever. Most of these valiant victims are women. Many have cast off their Veils, discarding the roles imposed by tradition. Hundreds gather every week in public park, thousands rally on the streets an often take part in the protest t marches to New Delhi, the national capital 750 kms away. On several occasions their demonstrations have been attacked by policemen leaving bleeding heads and fractured limbs behind. In defiance they chant, " We are the women of Bhopal , we are not flowers, we are flames"

THE CAUSES OF DISASTER IN RETROSPECT...

The immediate cause of the disaster are related to the cost cutting drive initiatives by Union Carbide Corporation from its headquarters in Danbury, Connecticut in 1980. The moves directed at enhancing profits included: reducing the number of personnel, use of low quality construction material, cutting down on vital safety measure and adoption of hazardous operating procedures.

Workers had to pay the cost of these economy measure with their life, health, jobs. Between 1980-1984 the work crew of MIC unit was halved from 12 to 6 workers and maintenance crew from six to two workers. On December 26, 1981 a plan operator was killed by phosgene gas leak. Another Phosgene leak in January 1982 severely injured 28 workers and in October of the same year MIC escaped from a broken valve and four workers were exposed to the chemical.

On the night of the disaster water being used for washing the lines entered the tank containing in MIC through leaking valves. The refrigeration unit which should have been kept the MIC close to zero degrees centigrade had been shut off by the company officials to save on electricity bills [confessed by Kamal pareek, Safety officer, Union Carbide India Ltd.]

The entrance of water in the tank, full of MIC at ambient temperature, triggered off an exothermic run away reaction and consequently release of the lethal gas mixture. The safety system, which in any case are not designed for such a run-away situation, were non-functioning. The scrubber designed to neutralize any escaping gas by spraying caustic soda was empty. And the flare tower meant to burn off any gases from scrubber was under repair.

By all accounts, the December 1984 disaster has been followed by medical disaster of unmatched proportions. Many stories pieced together mainly from newspaper reports underline the moral, ethical and quite possibly legal transgression of principal author of this continuing medical disaster...

Dear Rajan,

Greetings from PHM Secretariat (Global)!

Glad to know that you have agreed to join the UNDP integrated disease surveillance job in Delhi or Orissa and will work with Reuben Samuel. We are sure it will fit your needs and your professional training. We look forward to hearing more about the final output from the block level survey and the prescription analysis. Saw your report from Bhopal. Now you know how we got charged up to do more for these situations, which ultimately led to CHESS as well. Bhopal has been a major learning experience for both of us, since it was the first disaster we responded to after starting CHC and while we convened MFC in the year 1984 - 86. Try and read Shiv Vishwanathan and Ashish Kothare's report about the MFC study in an article - "Integration of a Disaster" - Lokayan Bulletin - 1985, which will challenge you as an action researcher.

Best wishes,

Today evening Sundar took me to attend a high powered meeting called by Health Secretary and attended by Director DHS and other directors. I enjoyed it, this sec is Surgeon and has great sense of humour, kept us laughing all the time.

Raman was telling me that he had good meeting with you and you had some very nice words for me and that you were concerned about me. I have now put an end to all the concern and worries of my near and dear ones.... While I was in Delhi I met Sampath. He has offered the UNDP integrated diseases surveillance job. Subject: ohnmovement.org publishing problems

Dear Prasanna,

Trust you are well.

Just coming out of working on a couple of projects.

Recently I happen to upload some files on the website (I am still doing it manually thing as the upload does not work for some reason). I hope you would have observed the same.

I have about 3 other sites on reddyhosting and have not found any problem publishing with FrontPage. I noticed, while I was there, that your internet connection is 'weak' and not reliable. That is probably the problem. Suggest you try publishing from a high-speed connection.

Also I am having some problem with the frontpage features which need the webserver (forms etc). How do I go about it. I tried to load the pws file from my win 98 CD but it still did not help. I know that there is this webserver residing on the web (supported by reddyhosting) but when I designed a form and tried to upload the same it did not take it in the proper form. A guidance on this would help.

There are several features that require FrontPage Server Extensions. When you use another ftp program to upload a page the functions that require these extensions will not work. There is no way around that - except to use another method of creating forms, etc. For forms you can use a .asp page - reddyhosting supports that.

Also we are having a big problem in India. Indian government has banned the web access of all yahoo groups. This has put me in trouble as I moderate the PHM India yahoo group. I was exploring the possibility of hosting a discussion group on our PHM website itself but apparently the discussion group would be in the form of a threaded pinboard and not in the form of email list server. I tried to verify whether ohnmovement.org supports email list servers but could not find an answer. Do you by any chance know whether that is possible?

I have not used email list servers and therefore am not too familiar with that. I do not think reddyhosting offers this - however you could write them in detail and ask. If they don't - then there are several companies on the net that do.

regards,
nand
