Subject: [pha-ncc] Communalism - www.stopfundinghate.org

Dear Friends

In the US, AID-Maryland has been working in the same area as IDRF (Washington DC area). We have always had problems with IDRF. We knew it was an RSS outfit funding VHP based organizations in India. They would be able to tap into big resources with the support of the VHP, Hindu Students Council, etc. AID, Asha and other groups like them have been fighting this by mobilizing students and professionals to support secular development activities and real pro-poor initiatives.

Ravi and I have attended meetings when we were students at Univ. of Maryland where IDRF would be on stage being projected as a purely charitable and development organization when actually it would be sponsoring communal organizations in India. Standing at the doorways we would pass newsletters and tell people why groups like AID should be supported instead of groups like IDRF.

Recently during the Gujarat Riots, AID and Asha took a strong stand against the carnage and the Gujarat government's support to the carnage. Suddenly we found AID and Asha coming under sudden 'email' attacks from Hindutva supporters. When some Asha volunteers went to check the source of these attacks they found email discussions on Hindutva newsgroups - many of the mails referred to how AID and Asha were drawing potential volunteers and donors away from IDRF and Hindu Students Councils. Many of these mails called AID and Asha 'pseudo-secularists' and 'communists' - a frequent abuse word used by the hindutva-supporters for people working on real development issues and with the poor.

After the Gujarat Carnage a lot of groups have started unearthing links between funding groups in the US which fund the VHP and its activities and their role in the communal carnage. A large part of the financial support to VHP is reported to come from these sources. As part of this initiative, groups like NRI-Sahi and Sadbhavana Mission (which consists of many volunteers of secular organizations like AID, Asha, ICA etc) have investigated organizations supported by IDRF. The website www.stopfundinghate.org shows a number of reports on these findings.

This website has unearthed sufficient evidence to show how IDRF has been working with the Sangh Parivar organizations and how it is run by the Hindutva groups and how it cons the public with a 'charitable and developmental' organization image.

Please sign the petition at www.stopfundinghate.org

It is important at this stage that AID and Asha and other secular groups do two things:

1. Fight this kind of support to communal groups.
2. Show that an alternative is possible - where people can support real development work being done where the poorest are being helped.

Thanks,
Balaji Sampath

Are the charity dollars generously provided by American companies, including some of our leading corporate citizens of the high technology world, being used to fund violent, sectarian groups in India? The Campaign to Stop Funding Hate (SFH) announces the launch of Project Saffron Dollar to bring an end to the electronic collection and transfer of funds from the US to organizations that spread sectarian hatred in India.

The Campaign to Stop Funding Hate (SFH) is a coalition of people-professionals, students, workers, artists and intellectuals-who share a common concern that sectarian hatreds in India are being fueled by money flowing from the United States. SFH is committed to an India that is open, tolerant and democratic. As the first step, SFH is determined to turn off the money flow from the United States to Hindutva hate groups responsible for recurring anti-minority violence in India.

IDRF: THE SANGH'S FUNDING BRANCH IN THE USA

Project Saffron Dollar aims to put an end to the collection of hundreds of thousands of dollars by the most 'respectable' of the US based funding arms of the violent and sectarian Hindutva movement-the India Development and Relief Fund (IDRF). In its communications and on its website, the IDRF claims to be a non-sectarian, non-political charity that funds development and relief work in India. However, a report - A Foreign Exchange of Hate - co-published today by the South Asia Citizens Web (SACW) based in France, and Sabrang Communications, Bombay, India, documents in rich detail the fundamental connections between the IDRF and the Sangh Parivar (or simply the Sangh, the name commonly used for the network of RSS-linked organizations that collectively define the Hindutva movement). Amongst other documents, the SACW/Sabrang report examines a tax document filed by IDRF (at its inception in 1989) with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) of the US Federal Government. The report offers the following:

[F]orm 1023, duly filled by IDRF executives when it was created in 1989, identifies nine organizations as a representative sample of the types of organizations IDRF has been set up to support in India. All nine are clearly marked Sangh organizations.

The report concludes that the fact of money being sent to organizations linked to the RSS is not a 'mere' incidental to IDRF's larger operations, but rather that raising funds for the Sangh Parivar is, and continues to be, the primary reason for the existence of IDRF in the US.

It is critical to underscore that IDRF's claim to being non-sectarian is entirely misleading. The SACW/Sabrang report indicates that a whopping 82% of the funds disbursed at the discretion of IDRF go to Sangh organizations. Of the remaining, the bulk goes to sectarian Hindu charities that may or may not have a direct Sangh affiliation. Less than five percent of their funds go to agencies that do not have a distinct Hindu-religious identification. Examining the IDRF fund disbursement from a 'activity-funded' viewpoint, the SACW/Sabrang report documents that nearly 70% of the monies are used for "hinduization/tribal/education" work, largely with a view of spreading Hindutva ideology amongst Adivasi (tribal) communities. Less than 20% of the total sent by IDRF is used in what are commonly understood as 'development and relief' activities. However, the report also concludes that "the 15% funds that the IDRF disbursed for "relief" must also be seen as sectarian funds" because of the sectarian basis of how relief work is carried out by the organizations that IDRF funds.

DOLLARS OF DECEPTION: IDRF FUND RAISING TECHNIQUES

A substantial proportion of IDRF's fund-raising is done through electronic means:
money transfer portals such as PayPal;
company foundations and their electronic portals such as Cisco Foundation;
other charity portals such as Givingstation.org; and credit card commissions through a NSC/MBNA Bank issued IDRF Master Card.

SFH research indicates that in excess of half a million dollars may be going every year into the hate-lined coffers of IDRF through such transfers. As of 10AM PST (USA), November 19 2002, petitions seeking an immediate cessation of the transfer of funds to IDRF have been dispatched along with comprehensive back-up documentation, including A Foreign Exchange of Hate report, to ten of the leading corporations, portals and money exchange facilities. The SFH petition urges these corporations to immediately disallow IDRF from using their facilities for direct or indirect fund-raising.

Many large US corporations such as CISCO, Sun, Oracle, HP and AOL Time Warner match employee contributions to US based non profits. "Annual Giving" programs normally happen once a year in late Fall-timed to occur between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Unsuspecting corporations end up giving large amounts of money as matching funds to IDRF as employees of these firms direct funds to IDRF. For instance, in fiscal 1999, Cisco Foundation gave almost $70,000 to IDRF - placing IDRF among the top 5 of Cisco grantees. In comparison, a well-regarded mainstream institution like the Nobel Peace Prize winning Doctors Without Borders received only $2,560. Also, other Indian-American development organizations such as Asha ($1,417), CRY-Child Relief and You ($4,427) or the Maharashtra Foundation ($2,000) all fared much worse than IDRF. Clearly, at least among Cisco employees, the IDRF has come to occupy much of the giving space. When you add Cisco's matching grants to the original amounts given by its employees, a total of at least $133,000 went through Cisco to IDRF in 1999-2000-this is more than 5% of IDRF's total cash collections for the same time period.

The dynamics of IDRF's corporate funding strategy are simple. As professional Indian migration to the US has boomed over the last decade, especially in the software sector, groups of Sangh operatives, in each of the large high-tech firms with liberal giving policies, have worked to put IDRF on the corporations' list of grantees. The swayamsevaks (Sangh 'volunteers') within these corporations then push IDRF as the 'best' and the 'only' way to provide funding for 'development & relief' work in India, thus causing not only other unsuspecting employees, but also the corporation itself to fund the Sangh in India. Such activities of Sangh operatives, within firms such as Cisco, constitute a clear effort to mislead the corporation into funding organizations that spread sectarian hate: explicitly in contravention of company policy. For instance, a criterion for eligibility for donations that Cisco outlines is that the "organization/project being funded must have a nonreligious primary purpose"; and, equally explicit, is the criterion for an ineligible organization: "organizations whose primary mission is to promote or serve one culture, race, or religion.." Clearly IDRF falls outside of the purview of eligibility because of its Sangh connection and is also marked clearly as ineligible because of its single minded focus on Hindus and the creation of a Hindu Rashtra (a vision of an exclusivist Hindu Supremacist nation).

The case of Charity portals such as Giving Station or Donation Depot is similar. Many US corporations use one or other of these donation portals to encourage annual giving by their employees. For instance, Hewlett Packard, the California based computer and peripherals giant, manages its annual giving plans through Giving Station.

IDRF has also adopted an older Hindutva strategy. Between 1993 and 1995 the VHP of America had signed up with AT&T in its Associations Rewards Program, wherein a fixed percentage of any subscribers total telephone bill could be directed to a non profit of his/her choice, provided the non profit was registered with AT&T in its Association Rewards Program. Under consistent pressure from people appalled by this misuse of charitable giving, AT&T withdrew all support to VHP of America. IDRF has reproduced exactly the same method for funds collection, this time through a credit card issued by MBNA bank as part of a program managed by the National Scrip Center-an organization founded primarily to simplify fund-raising by schools. The operation of this scheme is similar to what the VHP-A had tried with the AT&T Rewards program-from one to fifteen percent of all transactions conducted on an MBNA-IDRF credit card goes to IDRF.

What is perhaps morally more reprehensible than individuals directing money to IDRF knowing that most or all of it will be used for Sangh activities, is the subterfuge involved in misusing the generosity of well meaning individuals and organizations for the securing of hate money. Such deception does great harm to the Indo-American community by taking advantage of people (and corporations) who care, people who give money in the belief that they are helping non sectarian relief and development work in India.

A CALL TO BE VIGILANT

The diversity of the funds collection strategies employed by IDRF in the small sample outlined above indicates that it is very likely that there are many more such tactics employed by the Sangh that have yet to be uncovered. SFH is committed to following the last dollar.

Although it is clear that a large amount of money does go from the US to fund Sangh operations in India-what the exact amount is, is still an open question. The SACW/Sabrang report clearly locates "development" and "seva" work as the most potent Sangh cover in its spreading the ideology of hate. SFH sees its role as not just a campaign to stop such relatively 'over-ground' funding as done by IDRF, but also to promote an awareness of how even funds that are given to temples and cultural organizations may be ending up in the hands of the Sangh and similar organizations.

A decade ago, people who funded development work in India could do so without being too vigilant on the specific usage of these funds. But in the wake of the growing levels of sectarian violence across the world, we all need to heighten the level of scrutiny regarding the funds being transferred to organizations overseas-funds ostensibly collected for 'development & relief' work but being used to foment hatreds and spread violence.

Corporations also have a responsibility in ensuring that their funds are not misused by agencies like IDRF. By inadvertently promoting such groups, corporations end up not only supporting violence in India but also importing the divisions and hatreds of Indian society into the Indo-American community and promoting extremism on American soil.

For SFH our guiding light is well expressed by the apostle of peace, Mahatma Gandhi, who when told that the RSS had done some excellent relief work in the wake of the 1946 communal riots, answered, "But don't forget, even so had Hitler's Nazis and the Fascists under Mussolini." He saw right through this façade of seva and characterized the RSS as a 'communal body with a totalitarian outlook.' He paid for this with his life. Our task is to ensure that his message of peace, love and tolerance does not die in India.

JTV Correspondent

Watch story

Wednesday, November 20, 2002 (New Delhi):

A report released today in New Delhi claims it provides evidence that various Sangh Parivar organizations have received millions of dollars for charitable purposes.

It goes on to allege that a large portion of the money has been used to support sectarian activities, even communal violence such as the recent Gujarat riots.

The report is prepared by a California based group of young professionals who call themselves the 'Campaign to stop hate funding'.

Misuse of funds?

The group came together after the Gujarat riots this year and alleges that the money to Sangh groups is funneled through the India Development Relief Fund. The fund was set up as a secular charity in America in 1989.

The report says the IDRF has raised money ostensibly for charity from a range of top American corporations such as Cisco, Sun Microsystems and Hewlett Packard as well as from NRIs.

It also offers evidence that Hindutva groups used $1.7 million last year for sectarian purposes, which include conversion of adivasis and even violence.

Vehement denial

But the VHP has denied all charges of foreign funding. "It is wrong to say that we receive foreign funding. This is banned under government rules. During the Ayodhya movement some NRIs tried to send funds but it was stopped by the government of India," claimed Vishnu Hari Dalmiya, VHP President.

The Sangh Parivar may now try hard to dispel suspicions of foreign funding but the report clearly has cast a doubt over how the hard-line religious group runs its business.

Another Report on Rediff....

Josy Joseph in New Delhi

A study released in New Delhi on Wednesday says many American corporations and non-resident Indians are duped into funding rightwing fundamentalist groups that are spreading communal violence and hatred in India, a charge that the Sangh Parivar denies.

The report accuses the India Development and Relief Fund, a Maryland-based charity, of being a frontal organisation for the Sangh Parivar and its numerous outfits for funneling millions of dollars every year to be used by "violent, sectarian Hindu supremacist organisations".

Eleven NRIs in the United States, most of them academics and first-generation professionals concerned about the rise of fundamentalism in India, have conducted the study, which is based on American government documents, IDRF annual reports and other inputs.

They passed on the documents to Mumbai-based Sabrang Communications and The South Asian Citizens Watch based in France, which published them.

Biju Mathew, a New York-based professor who released the report in New Delhi, says they will also kick off a signature campaign on a petition to be submitted to leading US corporate houses such as CISCO, asking them to stop "funding hate".

The first phase of the campaign, he says, will be undertaken during Thanksgiving season when donations peak in the US.

The report says that over the past seven years, the IDRF has disbursed more than $5 million for 'development and relief work' in India.

"Many large US corporations such as CISCO, Sun, Oracle, and H-P [Hewlett-Packard] 'match' employee contributions to US-based non-profit organisations. Unsuspecting corporations end up giving large amounts of money as matching funds to IDRF as employees of these firms direct funds to IDRF," he says.

In 1999 the CISCO Foundation gave "about $70,000 to IDRF", placing it among the top five organisations to get CISCO grants. If CISCO's grant is added to the amount given by its employees, a total of at least $133,000 went to IDRF in 1999-2000, he adds.

The report says IDRF works through its network among professional Indian migrants who work with leading corporations. "The swayamsevaks [volunteers] within US corporations push IDRF as the best and the only way to provide funding for development and relief work in India, thus causing not only other unsuspecting employees but also the corporation itself to fund the Sangh in India," a statement issued during the release of the report says. Mathew says he and his NRI friends have launched "Project Saffron Dollar", which aims at putting an end to the collection of funds by the IDRF. Copies of the report and petitions demanding an end to the funding have been dispatched to various US corporations, Internet portals, and money exchange facilities.

"The IDRF has funded numerous relief efforts in response to natural disasters, communal violence, and other social crises," the report says.

"However, the distributive mechanisms utilised by the IDRF have consistently discriminated against Muslims and other minorities in India. The IDRF's relief efforts are frequently divisive and have supported the further communalisation of Indian society."

Mathew says IDRF did not raise any funds for the victims of the recent

Hi,

There was a time to REACT (to what happened in Gujarat) and a time to REFLECT (upon what is happening to our secular India). But now THE TIME HAS COME TO ACT!

As civil society in Gujarat works overtime to combat communalism in the State, please make YOUR voice heard across the seas--and help us stop funding hate from the U.S.

Raju Rajagopal

Dear friends,

This is a call for help.

Some of us have been working on launching the "Campaign to Stop Funding Hate" in order to staunch the flow of money from the desis in the U.S. to communal Sangh Parivar organizations in India. A report detailing the links between IDRF (an organization that collects money here ostensibly for relief and charity) and the Sangh was released to the press today both here and in India. The text of the report is available at <<http://www.stopfundinghate.org>>

The response from the press has been encouraging so far. Dozens of papers and magazines (both in India and the US) are carrying the story and many prominent voices are writing op-eds on the issue.

But this is only the beginning. We could use a LOT of help. At this time, we need you to visit the campaign's web-site and sign the petition that you

Do visit the campaign website or go directly to the petition at as soon as you get a chance and do the needful.

We will be calling on you for more as the campaign progresses. Thanks for your help.

Dear Ravi and Thelma,

Greetings from PHA Secretariat. I hope both of you are well.

A provisional list of the participants at the People's Health Assembly 2000, held from 4 to 8 December 2000 Gonoshasthaya Kendra (GK), Savar, Dhaka 1344, Bangladesh, has been prepared. The draft list of participants was sent to some of you for the correction. valuable inputs received from few. We are now disseminating it as provisional list to different individuals, organizations and groups for necessary correction or input as an attached files. Please go through the list and feel free to give your valuable input wherever necessary. We like to request you to correct the addresses including your one if necessary; you may provide the addresses of any participants who are not mentioned in the list; you may also provide us detail postal address with telephone and fax numbers, E-mails of the participants, if any. There may be names who actually did not participate during the event. Your valuable input will help us to prepare and disseminate the final list of the participants. We shall appreciate your cooperation. With your further input we will finally print the list. Due to its length, the list is attached as three files. If you are unable to download the files please let me know, I will try to send the files in other forms.

Did you receive PHA 5th News Brief by post ?

With thanks.

Qasem

Subject: Fw. Subcomm on Health and Dev

Dear Drs. Bala and Barzgar,

Greetings from PHM Global Secretariat!

Just to keep you in touch with PHM advocacy in UNESCAP you were the only two who cared to react to the proposals so its important to keep you both informed.

Best wishes,

Ravi Narayan

Dear Thelma and Ravi,

Greetings from Bangkok.

Hope you are both well and that your father is recovering.

The Subcommittee ended on a very positive note. The report, including the Regional Framework for Strategic Action, was adopted. The inputs from the presenters were very good as well and much appreciated by the delegates. That set the tone for the meeting and responses that followed from the delegates looked more at the broader health and development issues rather than the biomedical.

You may be happy to note that 40 countries have ratified FCTC and so now it is a legally binding document! This was shared during the Meeting.

The Report is now being formally edited. Attached is the draft version for your reference. Content-wise there will not be changes, I don't think but it's best not to circulate this copy for now. And wait for the formally edited copy to be ready. Will keep you informed.

The next important forum is the Global Conference on Health Promotion, August 2005. Hope PHM will be able to send a delegation and we could organize something together. Let's discuss further.

Warm regards,
Janet

Dear Lalit, Peter and Jocalyn,

I have hurriedly jotted down a few gut level thoughts as my early morning reflections on the five questions you sent me as part of an exercise on developing a new vision for academic medicine. I am in the midst of various professional demands – evolving a meaningful Tsunami response health watch; trying to dialogue with the Govt. of India on its new Rural Health Mission and Human Resource Development Strategies, continuing to evolve the programme of The Second People's Health Assembly at Cuenca – Ecuador (July 2005) and completing my peer – review commitments to certain chapters of the Alternative World health Report (also called Global health Watch) which we propose to release in a few months. Your request came in a terrible week of deadlines but it was too tempting to let go as well. So pardon, the hurried style of response – I hope its not all gibberish.

Best wishes,

PS: Recently with the Dorabji Tata Centre for Research Tropical Diseases and at the Global Forum for Health Research – (Forum 5 to 9), I have been making inputs to broaden this understanding of problem analysis in medicine. I forward two drawings that symbolize a more complex understanding of illness and health, which academic medicine needs to address. Can we make this paradigm shift?

The challenge for Academic Medicine

- The urgent need for a paradigm shift in framework and understanding
- 1. The future of 'academic medicine' is bleak if the present dominant trends continue.

What are these dominant trends?

- A failure to separate research endeavour (which has to be the core of any growth and renewal of a discipline), with the market economy and industry of medicine thus ensuring that commercial interests determine the nature of growth rather than true 'academic' or people's health interest.
- A consequent dominance of a biomedical paradigm which results in medical action that is mostly a market driven, deterministic 'technomanagerialism' rather than a holistic paradigm which would try to embed academic medicine in the social, economic, cultural, political and environmental determinants of health and illness. If the latter was done the concept of diagnosis and treatment would evolve newer, more comprehensive meanings.
 - A subtle de-ethicalisation of medicine to justify market interests over patients interest.

An urgent and deeper understanding of all these dominant trends are required to identify those aspects which are within professional control and those which require a greater societal consensus. My guess is that there is much more under professional control that we think.

- 2. To counter these trends one needs to evolve a greater dialogue of academic medicine with the social sciences, ethics, and other healing systems so that the younger academic medical practitioners and researchers have
 - b) A holistic understanding of health and disease
 - c) A greater competency to diagnose problems and conduct situation analysis at individual and community levels.

- d) A greater competency to initiate action at individual and collective / societal / community level
- e) A greater humility in our acceptance of the limits of our current 'knowledge systems' and disciplines.

[We have just started a fellowship scheme at our center, where young graduates of medicine, social sciences and other disciplines grow in their understanding of health through collective dialogue, community experience and field practice. This scheme is announced in the National Medical Journal of India – the only serious peer review journal in the country].

3. The most worrying aspect of 'Academic Medicine' seems to be, that the professional 'peer group debate and dialogue system' that was evolved gradually to ensure that the growth of knowledge is 'evidence based' (however rigorous or time consuming the process of gathering such evidence may be) – this system has now gradually broken down and funding muscle', cronyisms, corporate and professional interests, and 'showmanship' are beginning to dominate the leadership of academic medicine thus destroying its rigour, its deep scholarship and its traditions. Richard Horton's recent papers on the financial pressures on reputed peer review journals to accept not so scientific or rigorous papers with strong conflicts of interests and links with pharmaceutical companies is a case in point.

The concept of 'clinical epidemiology' and the over enthusiastic acceptance of 'meta-analysis'; the development of spurious concepts of Disability-adjusted life years (DALY's), and Global burdens of disease estimates (GBD) are part of this diluting trends. So also are concepts like DOTS for TB control; Pulse polio initiatives; the continuous Reproductive packaging of women's health and the 'condomisation' of the HIV / AIDS initiatives – What was the academic scholarship or evidence on the basis of which such global health programmatic decision were made. Where is the academic rigour? Why is academic medicine mostly silent?

In addition, when peers outside the medical profession have offered critiques, Academic Medicine has by and large, ignored them. The critiques of Ivan Illich (Medical Nemesis) and Fritjof Capra (Turning Point) have been largely ignored. I sometimes wonder why? Do we lack the openness or 'rigour' to respond?

4. The strengths and weakness of academic medicine's contribution to community especially in the light of our experience as a Society for Community Health Awareness Research and Action (a multidisciplinary community health training, policy research and health campaign group), which incidentally, currently hosts the Global Secretariat of the People's health Movement (a movement evolving in 75 countries, around the Peoples Charter for Health – now translated into over 50 languages. See www.phmovement.org) are as follows:

- The continued preoccupation with highly over funded, centrally driven field research initiatives, laboratory oriented medicine and now computer/information centred medicine that has marginalized the doctor-patient or the doctor-community relationship.
- The continued schizophrenic' of a concept of professional excellence that is cut away from the imperatives of social relevance and is often only technology driven. I believe what is 'socially relevant' is truly 'professionally excellent'. These are not necessarily in conflict.
- The continued inability of academics to learn from the realities of 'praxis' of medical practitioners facing the challenges in the real world. Our classifications, definitions and research protocols often 'box' out the real world!
- Medical conferences are mostly becoming 'circuses' sponsored by corporate interests and operations 'tourism and entertainment' rather than in the spirit of the original objectives of such academic dialogue. Methods like seminars, symposia, round tables, and workshops have lost their true meanings and all are becoming subservient to a continuing education driven by corporate interests, rather than truly open academic debate and enquiry.

- Where are the voices of the people, the consumers, the patients; civil society- the community in these conferences? Why do we continue only to talk among ourselves?

If we continue to talk to ourselves, we will continue to be 'mutual admiration societies' totally cut off from true social discourse or community dialogue hastening the social alienation of Academic medicine and the loss of trust and respect of lay people - a trend that is increasing today.

5. If I had total control over Academic medicine. I would make our hospitals, our medical colleges and training institution and all our research institutions - truly 'institutions with out walls' breaking down through creative processes of dialogue and action

- The walls between units and disciplines
- The walls between institutions and communities
- The walls between researchers and practitioners
- The walls between subspecialties and health professions of every category.

I would do this not by centrally administered 'diktat' or top down processes, but by a inspiring process of 'voluntary incrementalism' helping those who have already 'dismantled the walls' to inspire others, who are still caught in their institutional / academic compartmentalizations. I believe that this infectious enthusiasm generated by personal experience; creative praxis; and the deeply satisfying experience of dialogue with the real world outside can be an 'engine of change'? I believe it can be done. As they say it is an 'idea'; whose time has come'!

Dear Dr. Narayan,

As you may know, in 2003 the BMJ, Lancet, and 40 other partners launched the International Campaign to Revitalise Academic Medicine (ICRAM), a global initiative that is committed to developing a new vision for academic medicine. This will focus on increasing the relevance to communities of institutions that educate doctors and other health professionals, conduct biomedical and health systems research, and care for patients. Led by a core Working Party of medical academics representing 14 countries, ICRAM aims to redefine the core values of academic medicine and stimulate a public debate on the future visions for academic medicine (www.bmj.com/academicmedicine).

We would like to ask you to join us in developing this new vision.

The campaign arose because of a persistent concern that academic medicine is in crisis around the world. At a time of increasing health burden, poverty, globalisation, and innovation, many have argued that academic medicine is nevertheless failing to realize its potential and global social responsibility.

We believe that your/your organization's perspective is crucial to our work, and we would like to ask you to contribute a submission of approximately 500-1000 words that addresses the five following visions questions. Your contribution will be used in the ICRAM analysis and workshop on future visions for academic medicine (February 2005), and credited in ICRAM's Final Report and related publicity, due September 2005.

The February futures scenario workshop is aimed at describing a number of very different alternative future scenarios for academic medicine; it will be facilitated by Philip Hadridge (NHS, UK) who has extensive experience with scenario planning. We are keen to have as broad a range of input into this as possible ---hence this request.

We don't want to restrain your ideas and we're keen for extreme visions to be represented --- please do not hesitate to submit radical, creative, grave, or idealistic visions of the future of academic medicine in your region or setting!

The Five Questions

1. What are the major issues we currently face in AM (both those within and those beyond our control)?
2. Given these trends, what new performance competencies (roles, functions) do you think AM needs to acquire?
3. If you were worried about one thing in AM, what would it be and why?
4. In your experience with AM, what are the strengths and weakness of AM's contribution to your community (organization, journal, etc.)?
5. If you had total control over AM, what would you do?

We gratefully look forward to receiving your submission as soon as possible and if possible by 5 February 2005 via email to the project manager of the campaign, Jocelyn Clark, at jclark@bmj.com, and copy to Lalit Dandona at dandona@asci.org.in, lalit_dandona@yahoo.co.in. We understand that there is a short period between now and the suggested date of 5 February for submission of your views, and therefore, if you are unable to respond by 5 February we would still appreciate receiving your views over the next few weeks.

Thank you in advance for your valuable assistance. Please do not hesitate to contact us should you have any questions. Please excuse us if you received more than one request regarding your views on this initiative.

Best regards,

RN

Dear Friends

Greetings from PHM Secretariat (Global)!

This is the first academic book on Globalization and Health, which not only has a small contribution from Claudio and myself about PHM as a counter initiative to the ill effects of globalization on health, but also has some interesting comments about the significance of PHM in the Global and globalization context in the introductory and concluding chapters of the book. The authors / editors have presented PHM as a good example of 'Globalization from below' to counter the 'Globalization from Top'.

It is when academics, policy makers and researchers begin to take us seriously and we get discussed and written about in other circles outside of direct PHM linkages - that we can be sure that PHM is coming of age, even though we are still only under five.

This is one such example. Do any of you know of any more??

Best wishes

Ravi

PS: We shall be circulating some of Richard's comments on PHM as a stimulus for reflection.

>From a public health perspective, globalization appears to be a mixed blessing. This international collection of essays on globalization and health examines the global health issues associated with the economic, technological, political, social, cultural and environmental effects of globalization-the increasing movement of capital, people, technology, goods, information, environmental pollution, and disease around the globe. These essays analyze the complex linkages between globalization and health, the health effects of globalization at all levels (global, national, and local), and the policy and institutional responses associated with the health consequences of globalization.

Dear Andy,

Further to your email dated April 19th informing us of the grants from Cordaid, Medico and Health Link and in anticipation of the Grants from Misereor, SIDA and Christian Aid, Anil and I have prepared a table of Grant Allotments between Bangalore, Cuenca and OWA-UK which I hope is self explanatory and helps you in tracking both the transfers to Bangalore and Cuenca and the retained funds in London. We can discuss this on 21st April after you have seen it so that you can expedite the first transfer based on the grants already received. To simplify (!!) we have used USD as the basis for the divisions. Since you will be using GBP's you can insert those amounts to help us keep track in GBP as well. I decided to first have your approval of this statement before forwarding it to Maria, Arturo and the funding group. If it's ok you can do so. The challenge before us now is to raise the additional amount requested by PHA 2 Secretariat that is reimbursable and travel grants. I hope the funding group and Steering group other than Maria you and me will help us with this. You will be glad to note that with the suggested transfer to PHM Secretariat in Bangalore the amount due to CHC will be reimbursed. (See CHC statement on PHM Secretariat as of 31.03.05.).

Best wishes,

Ravi Narayan.

Dear Dr. Lee

Greetings for the New Year from PHM Secretariat (Global)!

The People's Health Movement have great pleasure in inviting you to be a special guest at the Second People's Assembly at Cuenca, Ecuador from 18th – 23rd July 2005 and to address the assembly.

We enclose the Second announcement of the assembly to give you and your colleagues advance information of the evolving content and framework of the six-day assembly. A more detailed invitation will follow from the International Organizing Committee as soon as we have a confirmation of your acceptance of the invitation.

We appreciate the demands on your time and while it would be a real pleasure for all of us PHM members, from all over the world to have you with us through out the event, we would definitely like you to consider being with us as, many days as possible, starting with the inauguration on 18th July.

You will recall that the first People's Health Assembly took place in GK Savar, Bangladesh from 4th – 8th December 2000 and led to the development of the Global People's Health Charter (now translated into over 55 languages) and the evolution of the People's Health Movement. WHO's absence was a great disappointment in spite of prior invitation and approval.

With your strong commitment to comprehensive Primary Health Care; the Health for All Goals; and the Social and Environmental Determinants of Health, we believe that the Second Assembly could be the beginning of a strong WHO – Civil Society partnership. Already we are greatly encouraged by the level of dialogue, which PHM has been able to have with so many units of WHO during your leadership and we look forward to your further endorsement of it at the assembly

The PHM strongly endorses the WHO mandate to make 'physical, mental and social well being' available to All and seeks to strengthen the people's resolve to make Health a Right and a Responsibility, with their total involvement. We believe the Second People's Assembly will be an opportunity to take stock of the challenges before all of us, towards these goals.

With best wishes

Dear Sir,

Thank you for confirming your participation in the Epidemiology Forum. Chennai has been facing Tsunami crisis. We are working closely with Tamil Nadu Govt. and other State Governments in providing support on surveillance related activities. In this context, we consider it far more important to go ahead with Epidemiology forum. I apologize for the delay in sending details of the programme, but I am sure you will understand.

Dear Dr Gupta we just got the news of the postponement of the NIE - Epidemiology forum meet. It seems that neither of us will be able to attend the consultation of NIE this weekend. We are sure that we are missing a rather interesting meeting and we look forward to the proceedings of the next dates. Incidentally at the last Global Forum for Health Research in Mexico (Nov 04) I presented a short preventive paper at the opening plenary entitled 'What Evidences whose evidence? and who decides?'

which was well received. I am sending you abstracts of that paper and 11 others by PHM colleagues. These very strong presence shall be full. All these papers may now be

Dear Ravi and friends of PHM,
This is a very important communication as we are coming so close to the PHA2.
Please take the time to update all the contacts.
We need these in order to make the referrals for the decision making process for participants at PHA2.
Soon we will have the registration form up and working from the IPHC website.
You will receive a directive from the PHM secretariat about this.
Good wishes to all of you,
Maria

Dear Ravi,

This is Tawnia with the Hesperian Foundation. I've been dedicating some time to the PHM stuff. Next week Sarah will be speaking about the PHM and we are hoping to set the stage for your presence here in the US. I was wondering if you have a little "blurb" already written about the accomplishments of the PHM in India that I could use. If so please send it my way or let me know where it is on the web. Thanks in advance,
Tawnia

P.S. Hopefully this reaches you before you leave if not please don't worry about it!
